Session Summary

The party traversed a forest path, successfully bypassing several traps to reach a clearing. In the clearing, they discovered a pond with a boardwalk surrounding a large entity known as The Singing Lotus. Upon arrival, a whispered singing voice echoed across the clearing, and the path behind them was blocked by a thick wall of thorny trees. A disembodied voice warned the party that they could not leave, claiming hunger.

Kroc-gar assessed the situation and identified the singing plants as potentially dangerous anomalies. Jexim examined the pond and found the water undrinkable. As the party investigated, Jexim fell into the pond when a lily pad collapsed, and vines began to pull him under. Grix threw a rope to rescue him, but a hidden archer attacked, revealing the presence of a hostile Wood Elf.

Combat ensued as the party fought against the Wood Elf, who was revealed to be crazed and protective of the lotus. Kallista incinerated the lotus, prompting the Wood Elf to retaliate. The battle escalated with various magical effects, including wild magic surges that affected the party members. Ultimately, Grix delivered the killing blow to the Wood Elf, but the boardwalk began to collapse afterward.

After securing the Wood Elf's body and looting his possessions, the party decided to camp near the pond for the night. They discovered a Kenku Necklace and a doll named Petal among the loot. During the night, Jexim shared dark findings from a scroll, hinting at a connection to Malachite and Petal. The session concluded with the party breaking camp and finding a clear path leading to the city, where they sighted Siorlann rising above the forest on the banks of the Granna Abhaine.

MOMENT

The Crazed Wood Elf's Vow

A dark-skinned wood elf with a longbow steps onto the boardwalk, vowing revenge for his destroyed lotus flower. He begins to sing, awakening the trees. Kroc-gar smirks, noting the elf is a bard, while Kallista retorts about killing a plant. The elf's melody animates the trees, their branches twisting toward the party. Nature has chosen a side.

MOMENT

Reaching Siorlann

The sun set, casting golden rays on the pond as Kroc-gar scaled its edges with Spider Climb, while Sorn glided overhead. Approaching the imposing Siorlann, Jexim and Kallista remained vigilant. "Stay alert; we're almost there," Kroc-gar urged. Excitement and trepidation swirled as they stood at the city's threshold, ready to confront the challenges ahead.

MOMENT

Kroc-gar's Culinary Cannibalism

As dusk fell, Kroc-gar, the Lizardfolk Warlock, cooked a meal from a disemboweled wood elf over a crackling fire. Kallista, the tiefling, teased him about the cooking time, while Kroc-gar felt an urge to consume the flesh linked to his sword. The group joked about their grim feast, with Kroc-gar insisting, "Wasting this would be a foolishness we cannot afford."

Combat with the Wood Elf

- The party engaged the Wood Elf in the pond clearing.
- Kallista incinerated the Singing Lotus, provoking the elf's attack.
- Grix delivered the killing blow after a series of chaotic exchanges.

Looting and Discoveries

- The party looted the Wood Elf's body, finding a Kenku Necklace and a doll named Petal.
- Jexim shared findings from a scroll about Malachite and Petal.
- They decided to camp near the pond after securing the body.

Key Entities

The Singing Lotus: Served as the focal point of the clearing, drawing the party's attention and ultimately leading to combat.

Fossmore Forest: Provided the setting for the party's journey and the location of the pond with the Singing Lotus.

Petal: A doll discovered in the Wood Elf's satchel, hinting at a deeper connection to the fey.

Wood Elf: Attacked the party after they destroyed the Singing Lotus, revealing his crazed nature and zealotry.

Kenku Necklace: Found among the Wood Elf's belongings, it is a significant item with potential lore implications.

Thalin's Diary: A scroll taken from the Wood Elf that contained dark revelations about Malachite and Petal.
