The party returned to Aite-Briethe, approaching the city and noting the tower of Siorlann rising above the forest. As they crossed the Chandler Ross Memorial Bridge, a mysterious whisper echoed in their minds. In the busy market district, they observed various creatures including goblin pariahs, tabaxi merchants, kobolds, and tritons hawking wares. They approached Ranger's Rest, a tavern favored by Cailleotairi, and noted a fenced park and a magical pond nearby.

Upon reaching the stables, a loud yell drew their attention, prompting them to check on Charlie, Jexim's donkey. Suddenly, an Eladrin stablehand's corpse was hurled out of the stables, followed by several tentacled flesh masses known as "malleables." The party engaged in combat with the malleables, with Sorn firing arrows, Jexim casting spells, and Kroc-gar cleaving through the creatures with his sword Bas. The chaos escalated as the malleables merged and attacked, causing panic among nearby commoners.

The battle continued inside Ranger's Rest, where the party and guards fought the malleable that had entered the tavern. After a fierce struggle, Grix delivered the final blow, collapsing the creature. Following the fight, Voshtai, a lizardfolk leader, demanded to know what the party had brought with them. He explained that malleable abominations had been occurring among pack animals, and the Dagda Circle had assured it would not recur, yet it had.

The party reported on their previous mission regarding the elder tree Admijr and the dwarves' broken treaty with wood elves. They also discussed Malachite's influence and shared a diary recovered from the woods. Tensions rose as Jexim confronted his estranged brother Brocc Hedker, who claimed their mother was alive. The session concluded with Voshtai tasking the party to choose their next mission, emphasizing the need for diplomacy among the Tuatha and the investigation of Malachite's activities in the region.
